

Abstract

Method and System for Performing Commodity Purchasing

Commodities may be purchased through a network by sending a request from a computer or a cellular phone. An identifier corresponding to an identification code of the cellular phone is included in the phone request. By analyzing a connection request, it is determined whether or not the identifier is included. Different session control is executed depending on whether the identifier is included or not.

20090629.020001